

Snake Eye Raised Countersunk Machine Screws

Our Snake Eye range of screws (also known as pig nose or two hole) is regarded as the most visually appealing security head available. Although this is an extremely versatile screw, for higher torque applications, where the screw has to be tightened to a higher degree, please consider using Pin Hex or Pin Torx screws. If you need to match a screw that you already have, please see below for our Snake Eye machine screw head dimensions, which should hopefully help you match with our range.

Electrical Box Screws

These 3.5mm raised countersunk screws are designed for use in electrical boxes. With a view to keeping security a priority, these screws are ideal for light switch fittings, networking boxes and any other electrical fitting. As there is little of value behind the plastic panel on the front of an electrical socket, this screw is all about safeguarding. It is often employed in prisons, youth offender institutes, nursing homes and institutes/asylums. Specifically, within Prisons and Youth offending buildings, these screws can protect others from the malicious and dangerous acts of others. Whether driven out of boredom or something more sinister, the electrical box screw offers an essential barrier. The same is true in institutes and nursing homes, with this screw sadly protecting people from themselves.
